This 35mm rangefinder camera, faithful copy of the Leica II, is a nice collector's item and works properly: shutter is ok (all shutter speeds work); cloth curtains are efficient; film transport works well. Optical system: viewfinder visibility is ok; the double image has good contrast. Aesthetically, the camera is well preserved, with no tears in the leather cover nor signs of impacts. The camera has not been used with film. The photos are part of the description.
